The Charleston County Bar Association Holds its Annual Meeting and Installation of Officers

CHARLESTON, SC (February 27, 2015) – Members of the Charleston County Bar Association (CCBA) gathered at the Francis Marion Hotel on Thursday, February 26 for their annual meeting. During the gathering, the new officers and members of the Executive Committee were installed. Additionally, the Bar recognized those attorneys who have served in the legal profession for more than 50 years, and eulogized those members of the Bar who died during the past year. Those memorialized include: Donald Barkowitz, H. Stanley Feldman, Andrew David Grimes, J. Heyward Harvey and the Honorable Klyde Robinson.

James D. Myrick, partner at Womble Carlyle Sandridge & Rice LLP, will serve as CCBA president during the upcoming year and gave the keynote address. He is a graduate of the University of South Carolina Law School and is a veteran litigator with experience in business litigation, land use, personal injury, products liability, and environmental disputes. During his tenure Myrick intends to promote the CCBA, and to improve communication among its growing 2,000+ members and with the public. As part of those efforts, the CCBA will launch a new, interactive website in May; continue making quality legal education courses available for lawyers; and provide mentoring and networking opportunities to newer attorneys. Myrick also plans to preserve the unique and enviable collegiality among CCBA members. “This isn’t just a feel-good sentiment. Instead, these relationships make us more effective in crafting solutions to the problems experienced by our clients. This collegiality, bigger than mere civility, is a precious asset to be preserved, even as our membership numbers grow,” said Myrick.
